

Stocks Page — Sales Flow & Visitor Journey

How the redesigned TradeFundrr stocks page moves a visitor from skeptic to signup.

TradeFundrr · Prepared for review · May 29, 2026

1

HOOK

"Is this just another prop-firm scam?"

The page's job: Reframe the offer in one line and stop the scroll.

Hero — 'Stop trading your money. Start trading ours.'

2

PROBLEM · AGITATE

"Why am I still stuck at this account size?"

The page's job: Make the capital and time problem feel real and personal.

The truth most traders figure out too late

Capital-gap visual

Time-tax visual

Scale math (the 20% problem)

What keeps you stuck (loss aversion)

3

THE TURN

"Wait — there's actually another way?"

The page's job: Introduce funded trading as the missing third option.

4

THE OFFER

"What does it cost, and what do I get?"

The page's job: Lay out the programs, the pricing, and the capped downside.

Pricing — Growth / Express / Pro + rebate

Growth vs Express comparison

Risk math — downside capped

5

MECHANICS

"Can I trust how this actually works?"

The page's job: Prove the mechanics are transparent and fair.

How it works · 3 steps

Security deposit (fee returned on pass)

Full per-plan rules breakdown

Business model — where payouts come from 6

PROOF & TRUST

"Is this legit? Who's behind it?"

The page's job: Anchor credibility — real partner, real reviews, real rules.

Two paths · one mission

7

CLOSE

"Okay — I'm ready to start."

The page's job: Ask for the signup with the risk reversed.

Final CTA — 'Start trading our capital.'

THE ARC, IN ONE LINE

Problem (you're capped by capital and time) → Turn (funded trading is the third option) → Offer (programs, pricing, capped risk) → Trust (real partner, real reviews, transparent rules) → Close (start with the risk reversed).
